

A large, modern exhibition booth with a complex, interconnected metal frame and translucent panels, illuminated with warm lights. The booth is situated in a large, dark hall with blue tiered seating visible in the background. The structure is composed of several interconnected rectangular frames, some with translucent panels and others with solid dark panels. A small counter with the MaxiMax logo is in the foreground. The background shows the dark interior of a convention hall with blue tiered seating and a complex network of metal beams and stage lights hanging from the ceiling.
